Abundance, 2020

This artwork had been work in progress for over 6 months and was finished during the first week of lockdown. Made with a lot of dried plants, in vibrant bright colors, it was exhibited in Doina's balcony in Brussels during the pandemic, in order to encourage the people from her neighborhood. The art speaks to the soul and living without art during the pandemic would have been a very tough depressing challenge for everybody. The story behind (inspired from personal development books): With an abundance mindset, you believe there's plenty for everyone. There's plenty of wealth, prestige, and happiness to go around. You're optimistic about the future. You know things will work out one way or the other. We are all just one thought away from becoming a completely different person. How beautifully fragile we are so a tiny little second can alter who we are!

The Dancing Tree, 2019

Technique influenced by Miro and theme inspired by Alda Merini's poem: "Tu non sai: ci sono betulle che di notte levano le loro radici, e tu non crederesti mai che di notte gli alberi camminano o diventano sogni."

"Doina Popescu, a Romanian artist from Bucharest but resident for many years in the cosmopolitan Brussels, is connected to the naturalist need of elements of flora while making it a necessary voice to tell the human feelings that hover around her and that she absorbs by listening to herself but also those who revolve around her, revealing an empathy and an uncommon openness. Trees, her favorite subject, become a treasure chest of emotional memory as well as a story of feelings perceived in a fragment of life that symbolically seems to be the seed in which the roots sink." Where the Sun Meets the Earth, 2017

This is the first painting in which Doina used coffee powder and wood. The creation of this artwork is based on fragments of her emotional memory. This is a still story of her feelings perceived in a corner of nature full of light, that symbolically seems to be situated in an indefinite point between the Earth and the Sun, a place in which the time stops and her roots sink around and in order to allow her to bloom luxuriantly.

Fall in Rome, 2019

"Doina Popescu hopes for the human being, too often invested with fears, worries that drive him away from his center, to detach from everything he really needs, to maintain his stability even in difficulties. She loves to immortalize positive, delicate emotions, those that tell of moments in which the gaze was enchanted not so much by the landscape as by the atmosphere that cloaked what the eyes perceived, so without dwelling on details but letting be enveloped and transported by the vibration of inner strings. This characteristic of Doina Popescu is clearly revealed in the work Fall in Rome, where the color of the leaves leads back to a season in which nature seems to pause and leave the exuberant vitality of summer, although the still vivid memory places the image within a pleasant, delicate, reassuring rather than nostalgic atmosphere" Marta Lock, Art Critic, Italy

Humanity, 2019

The human nature has inspired the creation of this painting. "Humanity" represents how unique and diverse we are as well as the connections between us. The shapes and textures create a movement that evokes a constant evolution while the colours are wrapped in the brown as a reminder of our common house: the earth. Small flashes of gold represent the wisdom we need to create unity in diversity.

Purple moon, 2020

Dominated by pink and purple colours the sea, mountains and atmospheric sky form a unique composition with the moon, hidden by a hazy shade, almost in the center creates a calm, meditation like mood.

Das Meer, die Berge und der atmosphärische Himmel, die von rosa und lila Farben dominiert werden, bilden eine einzigartige Komposition, wobei der Mond, der von einem dunstigen Schatten verdeckt wird, fast in der Mitte eine ruhige, meditationsähnliche Stimmung erzeugt.

Fire, Black, Red and Ice II, 2019

Iceland, also known as the island of fire and ice, is the setting for this high-contrast photo series. Prominent, tough, vulnerable, colorful in this wonderful but hostile environment, strong, red on black with joy and optimism, the vulnerable wrests its power from the dangerous. Island, auch als Insel des Feuers und des Eises bekannt, ist die Kulisse für diese kontrastreiche Fotoserie. Prominent, hart, verletzlich, farbenfroh in dieser wunderbaren, aber feindlichen Umgebung, stark, rot auf schwarz vor Freude und Optimismus, ringt der Verletzte dem Gefährlichen seine Macht ab.
